In 2008, one lucky state—Ohio—received more attention than the 25 smallest states* combined.

Rather than boost small states, current Electoral College rules marginalize nearly all of them.