

Defenders of the Electoral College's rules claim battleground states* change, eventually giving each state its moment in the political spotlight.

99 consecutive years of irrelevancy

But the people of Utah know better. Their state hasn't been a battleground since 1912.

* A "battleground state " is defined as a state that was won by less than six percentage points.